

ABSTRACT

An organic electroluminescent device comprising: a pair of electrodes; and at least one organic layer provided between 5 the pair of electrodes, at least one of the at least one organic layer being a light emitting layer, wherein the light-emitting layer comprises a compound represented by the formula (I) as defined herein.